The odor from the farm a few years ago had turned nauseating and potentially noxious. Many people in our neighborhood (Hawks Ridge) have complained of the odor making them sick and have noticed chrome on vehicles turning black. We moved here 22 years ago and were aware of a mild odor at the time. However, in recent years, it has risen to a level that is unbearable. While walking my dog to our neighborhood park, the wind shifted blowing the smell to the park and I threw up from the putrid odor. Should we have to live like this? It isn't just our neighborhood either but others and I'm sure the poor children at Nisqually Middle School detest it just as much.
